Should City or County Run Recycling ? Committee Presents Divergent Views

by Diane Oberg

Since October 1989 the Advisory Committee on Recycling and Refuse Collection has been studying ways to expand the amount of refuse recycled by residents. Rather than submitting a single recommendation, the committee presented two approaches to recycling in majority and minority reports. On April 23 the committee met with the Greenbelt City Council to discuss the proposals and the staff response. At the April 30 regular meeting, council directed to distribute the report to all homeowner and civic associations in the city. Once these groups have had time to review the report, council will schedule a public hearing and a worksession with county officials.

The major area of difference is what jurisdiction would be responsible for the expanded recycling program. The majority report recommends an expanded city-run program with residents sorting their recyclables for door-to-door pickup. Under the minority plan, the county would run the program, with residents taking their unsorted recyclables to the curb for pickup.

Both groups agree that a city-wide educational program is needed, that the city should try to maximize the amount of materials recycled, that drop-off points are needed throughout the city and that there should be an ongoing committee to monitor the city's progress.

In January of this year, the county began a two-year pilot recycling program. Fifteen communities have already joined or agreed to join this program, including College Park, Riverdale, University Park, New Carrollton, Berwyn Heights and Hyattsville. During its initial stages, the county program will depend upon private haulers to both collect and market the recyclables. This arrangement will change when a county material recovery facility (MRF) is completed. According to the minority report, the county is currently soliciting proposals for the design and operation of this facility which is to be constructed in the Northampton Estates area, near the Beltway and Central Avenue. If needed, the county may construct a second MRF. Committee chair Charlotte Johnson said that the county expects the MRF to be operational within the next two years.

At the MRF, the materials will be sorted, cleaned and prepared for sale. The result will be a high quality product for recyclers.

The majority report was supported by 7 of the 11 members of the committee, including the five GHI residents. The lack of hard data about costs, degree of voluntary participation and revenues to be gained from the sale of recyclables complicated the debate. Each group, forced to make its own estimates and assumptions, reached different conclusions based on the results of its computations. Another problem is conflicting responses from the county on the scope of its plan.

City Service

At the April 23 meeting, Hank Haslach presented the case for the majority report. The majority plan calls for a city-run recycling program, with door-to-door pickup of aluminum, glass, steel, plastics and newspapers, sorted by the residents. Although they recognize that many communities attempt to make the program easier by not requiring the residents to sort their recyclables, the majority group argues that this convenience makes the recycling effort more labor-intensive and expensive. They believe that Greenbelters will be willing to make this effort to reduce the program's cost. The materials would be sorted into a set of five stacked containers for collection by the city. An additional trash crew member and a half-time coordinator will be needed, according to Haslach, to oversee the recycling collection and market the materials.

Haslach said that the GHI representatives were particularly concerned that door-to-door pickup continue. He argued that the added convenience would increase participation in the program. While the group favors sorting by the residents, he said sorting by the hauler at the truck is "not inconsistent with our plan." He said that if the city controls the program, any combination would probably be okay.

One danger with the county plan, said Haslach, is that there will be high labor and capital costs at the MRF. He worried that the county may decide this is inefficient and again consider constructing an incinerator. Haslach also argued that any savings to the city from joining the county plan actually resulted from letting others, such as commercial dumpers, pay for collecting the city trash. He questioned how long this subsidy would be continued. Leonie Penney argued that the city should take advantage of this subsidy, which she calculated at $60,000 per year, for as long as it is available.

Scope of City Plan

Initially, recyclables would only be collected from those residents receiving city refuse service. After a year or two, the proposal calls for an effort to expand city refuse and recycling service throughout the city.

Currently, only GHI and the single family homes in the core of the city are receiving city trash service, according to David Helmecki, Administrative Assistant in the Public Works Department. The other communities have contracted with private haulers. Residents pay a separate fee to receive this service, and each community is free to contract with the city or a private hauler. The majority group recommends that the city expand its drop-off center operation. In addition to the current site near Buddy Attick Park, two new sites are recommended, one in Greenbelt East and one in Springhill Lake. These sites woul allow residents to drop off additional materials including cardboard, antifreeze, car batteries and motor oil. In addition, the group recommends small centers at the pool, city buildings, Roosevelt Center and Buddy Attick Park. These sites would, at minimum, serve as collection points for empty soda cans.

Marketing Recyclables

This proposal would require the city to continue to market recyclables. The group notes that the city has been successful in

GHI Members Will Meet And Elect on May 16

by Barbara Likowski

Greenbelt Homes, Inc. members will be asked to approve revision to the corporation's charter at the annual meeting, May 16 at 8 p.m. in Center School. In an effort to ensure a quorum, door prizes will again be awarded.

Because the meetings have been running late, this year steps will be taken to shorten the meeting. Reports from officers and elected committees will be brief and questions and answers about reports will be eliminated. Candidates for the board and audit committee will be introduced and will speak briefly.

Five members are running for five positions on the board. Four positions are open for election this year. The fifth position is a one-year slot which has opened up because a board member resigned during the year and the position was filled until time for the election. The candidate with the fewest number of votes will be elected to a one-year term, the others will have two-year terms.

Running are incumbents Chuck Hess, Ray McCawley and John Taylor (Taylor was appointed to the board in 1989) and newcomers John Mongelli and Donald Comis.

Candidates for the audit committee are incumbents Robert Rashkin and Peter Liebscher and newcomer Lloyd Edward "Ed" James. James was a member of the board of directors in 1979-81.

This year members attending the meeting will be able to vote for the board of directors and the audit committee in the Center School lobby that evening after the meeting is recessed. This form of voting had been used in the past but had been discontinued. However, when it was noted that more people attended the annual meeting than voted for members of the board, it was decided to go back to voting the night of the meeting. Voting will continue on Thursday, May 17 from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in Center School.

Nominations and Election Committee Election

The five members of the nominations and elections committee will be elected during the membership meeting. Incumbents Susan Walker and Lekh Batra, and Robert Mongelli, Diane Liebscher and Jean Corbin are running for the five-member committee. Nominations may be made from the floor.

The charter revision which will attempt to bring the charter into conformity with Maryland law also includes editorial changes. It requires a 2/3 vote of those present and voting to approve a charter change.

Previously the charter did not explain how to amend the charter and now that is being put in. Other changes make clear the intent of the corporation to be a cooperative.

Door prizes will consist of a $200 United States Savings Bond and two $100 bonds. These prizes will be awarded at the end of the meeting.

County Puts Stop Order on Sunrise

The Sunrise Development Limited Partnership has been ordered by the county to stop work on the Sunrise apartment project located next to the Beltway just south of the Holiday Inn. Apparently this order was issued after City Manager James Giese reported to the county that on May 3 he "observed a poured footing approximately 30 feet in length with reinforcing rods projecting from the concrete. The concrete was not fully cured."

Giese further noted in his May 4 memo that there had been no evidence of construction taking place on Sunrise when he drove past the area on May 1 in the morning and afternoon, except for trees that had been "felled and lying upon the ground over a large area of the property."

On May 1, late in the morning, the County Council sitting as the District Council adopted the Sectional Map Amendment for Langley Park-College Park and Greenbelt. By this action the District Council down-zoned the Sunrise property from its existing R-10 high rise apartment classification (maximum 48 units an acre) to R-18-C condominium apartments (maximum 20 units an acre.)

In a letter to Eugene Lauer, Director of Department of Environmental Services, dated May 7, Giese said that "a foundation was not constructed upon this

Recycling

The Advisory Committee on Recycling and Refuse Collection Procedures submitted their report to city council on April 16. The issues addressed in the report are complex. Various options exist for how materials should be handled in your home, how and where they should be picked up from your home, and how the materials should be prepared for sale. Public discussion of this report has engaged much feeling and thought.

What has been lost in the public discussions are the points of consensus upon which all participants on the committee agreed.

Some of the most important points are as follows:

1. Recycling is an integral part of solid waste disposal. The solutions offered can not be temporary measures. Recycling impacts on our quality of life and the lives of our children.

2. Regardless of the entity that picks up or markets the recyclable materials, the fact remains that the major benefit of recycling is cost avoidance. The greater the amount of material that citizens can recycle the less the city will pay for disposing of refuse at the county dump. Increasing the amount of materials that are recycled will increase the "life-span" of the existing dump because it will fill up at a slower rate.

3. Education is key to the success of any recycling program. The city and the schools will both play major roles in assuring the success of a recycling program. The need for people to understand their choices and the consequences of their actions is especially important in the success of a recycling program because recycling demands a change in our everyday habits. The children of our city will be the easiest to reach and teach.

4. Greenbelt is a unique community and can be a leader in setting recycling goals.

We encourage those that are interested to read the report. Copies are available in the Greenbelt Library, in the Greenbelt Homes Inc. office, through most homeowners associations and from the city manager's office.

Not Sticky?

The city has received a number of complaints from purchasers of Repel'M II Gypsy Moth Caterpillar Tape that the tape sticks poorly to trees. Last year, and early this season, the city sold Repel'M III tape, which stuck much better. Unfortuately, this product is no longer available. You may wish to consider these complaints before you buy Repel'M II.

You will notice that the first step on the side of the box contains an instruction to moisten the applicator sponge. Earlier boxes of this tape contained such a sponge, but these boxes do not. A common household sponge should serve as a good substitute.

The city is selling this tape at cost as a service to citizens. We are not making a profit and are very sorry for any inconvenience that insufficiently sticky tape may be causing. As a result of the complaints we have received, we have contacted our distributor and let him know of the problem and will re-evaluate our policy of selling this product before ordering any next year.

property until after the enactment of the Sectional Map Amendment."

According to the county inspection department, a building permit was issued in December 1989 and revised on May 1. Currently, the County Office of Law is reviewing the matter. Of central importance is whether the developers now have vested rights in the R-10 zoning or whether the development must now be constructed in the R-18-C zone.

Senior Citizens Committee Seeking Community Input

Following the recommendation of the Senior Citizens Task Force, City Council established a permanent Senior Citizens Advisory Committee last fall. This committee is responsible for developing a comprehensive city policy on senior citizens, increasing public awareness of the problems faced by older citizens, increasing participation in senior and other activities, conducting an annual review of ongoing city programs related to senior citizens and advising City Council on matters related to the problems and concerns of senior citizens and their care givers.

Nine people were appointed to the committee: Jerry Conway, Tony Pisano, Benjamin Wollery, Booker T. Hughes, Bob Rudd, Betty Timer, Marjorie Bergemann, Helen Geller and Leonie Penney. They have been meeting regularly since February and at their last meeting, elected Booker Hughes as president, Betty Timer as vice president and Marjorie Bergemann as Secretary.

An open forum will be held on June 9 at the Youth Center from 2 to 4:30 p.m. to gather information from the city's seniors and all other interested persons about their needs, desires and problems.

Aerial Assault on Moths Completed by State, City

by Eric Berlin
City of Greenbelt

Contractors for both the Maryland Department of Agriculture and the City of Greenbelt completed spray operations in Greenbelt on Monday, May 7. The aerial spraying was performed to control the gypsy moth caterpillar, which has been damaging oaks and other hardwood trees throughout the state.

The Department of Agriculture, using helicopters, completed the spraying of Dimilin in the eastern part of old Greenbelt on Thursday, May 3, and comed the spraying of B.t. (bacillus thuringiensis) in the western part of old Greenbelt on Monday, May 7. While Dimilin is more effective than Bt, it should not be sprayed over open areas of water, as it has been shown to be harmful to aquatic life.

The city's contractor, Aero Tech, Inc. of Bovina, Texas, conducted a second spraying of Bt on Monday, May 7. Aero Tech used fixed-wing planes to perform the spraying. Bt is more effective when sprayed over an area twice. Optimally, the two sprayings of Bt would have come a few days apart; unsettled weather, however, forced both the state and the city to spray on the first suitable day. In addition to the second spray over the state's spray block, the city contracted for a single spraying of Schrom Hills Park, Greenbriar Park, Indian Springs Park, and the city cemetery.

The DC-3 that many citizens observed flying over the city on Friday and Monday was used to spray federal lands at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center. Greenbelt was used as a turnaround zone for these planes, but nothing was sprayed by these planes within the city borders.

Gliders Fly at Clinic

Tim and Brendon Spear of 109 Ridge Road were battling it out over who could stay up the longest at a seminar on indoor balsa-wood glider flying at Center School recently. Both were getting flights in excess of 20 seconds in their first attempt at flying indoor balso-wood gliders. Good coaching helped. Local glider expert Dan Belieff held the national low-ceiling record for many years.

After the glider clinic, the aircraft being flown progressively became lighter and more sophisticated. By 10 p.m. planes weighing less than a paper clip were doing effortless 10-minute flights on half power.

Five local fliers used this event to tune up for June's National Indoor Championships in Tennessee and for a series of low-ceiling record trials that will be held at the Goddard Space Flight Center.

If Tim and Brendon put their glider on a diet they could have a good shot at the junior national record for low-ceiling flying sites.

The next fly-in will be held in Center School auditorium on May 18 at 6:30 p.m. All are invited.

RABIES CLINICS OFFERED TO VACCINATE PETS

In Prince Georges County the rabies epidemic began in 1983. Last year there were 32 animals which tested positive for rabies. A total of 62 persons had to undergo the anti-rabies treatment because of exposure to rabid or potentially rabid animals. Rabies will continue to exist in wild animals in the county for many years. Household pets which have contact with animals that are infected with rabies, may also become infected and then be a source of infection to humans.

In order to provide citizens with a convenient and low cost means of immunizing their household pets, the Health Department will be operating thirty (30) anti-rabies clinics throughout the county during May.

There will be several rabies clinics in or near Greenbelt. In Greenbelt the clinic will be at Greenbelt Middle School on Saturday, May 19, 2-4 p.m. On Thursday, May 17 there will be a clinic in Lanham in the New Carrollton Shopping Center (on the north side of Route 450) from 6-8 p.m. For more information call the Special Rabies Clinic number 464-4910. There is a fee.

Homemaker Club to Meet

The Greenbelt Homemakers Club will meet on Wed., May 16, at the home of Shirley Hibbs. A program on retirement will be presented by Barbara Talbott.

Wheelchair users in the community are invited to come to NRH, 102 Irving St., N.W., where technicians will perform a variety of services free of charge, including frame cleaning, brake adjustment, tire inflating, footrest tightening, and axle lubrication. They may also schedule appointments with NASCOTT if more extensive repairs or wheelchair parts need to be ordered. Divergent Recycling Views marketing its newspapers, glass and aluminum, realizing approximately $4,000 in the 89/90 fiscal year. The majority report says that, "The managers of the county plan have stated that their primary concern is to dispose of recyclable materials and not to make money from their sale." The report argues that if the city makes a greater effort to negotiate sale contracts, the city would gain additional revenue.

The majority group estimates that the city would have recognized $26,000 in 1989 from the sale of recyclables had an expanded recycling program been in place.

Costs and Rebate

In January 1990, the county imposed a recycling surcharge of $10/ton on all materials "tipped" into county landfills. If the city were to run its own recycling program, rather than join the county pilot program, it would be eligible to receive a rebate of the funds the county would have spent to collect the city's recyclables, up to the total recycling surcharge paid by the city. If this fee had been in effect in 1989, the city would have paid $29,320. If the recycling program is successful, this surcharge amount would decrease, but so would total tipping fees.

In order for the city to run a recycling program, it would need to purchase a recycling vehicle and stackable containers for refuse customers. The group recommends either a $14,000 trailer or $45,000 truck, each of which has separate compartments for the various types of recyclable materials. The report stated that state grants could cover these costs, but at the April 23 work session the group reported that they have since learned that the only state funds available are interest-free loans. According to the majority report county and private funds may also be available.

The committee members favoring this option say that the additional service can be provided with little or no additional cost to the city, once recycling revenues are taken into account. Nonetheless, Haslach said that service, not cost, should be the primary consideration in determining how to implement an expanded recycling program.

The majority group argues that the community will benefit from city control of the operation, including the ability to limit the hours during which the collection is done to minimize disturbance to residents and benefit from the revenues from the sale of recyclables and the reduced landfill tipping fees.

County Program

The other four members of the committee argued that the city would be better off if it participated in the county pilot program. Their minority report argues that joining the county program would insulate the city from cyclical ups and downs in the market for recyclables and would provide a minimum risk strategy for recycling. This group favors an expanded drop-off program in the city to supplement the county program. Like the majority report, the minority report also favors siting drop-off centers in Greenbelt East and Springhill Lake. Under this proposal, the city would collect motor oil, car batteries, white goods (refrigerators, washers, stoves, etc.) and tires at these centers.

The county program would serve those areas of the city receiving city refuse service. The residents of townhouses and single family homes not served by the city would determine whether their private haulers wished to collect recyclables. The report says that those areas could then join the county program, if the haulers were not interested.

The committee members complained that they have received contradictory responses from county officials. Two major areas of dispute were whether the county was prepared, in the short term, to collect recyclables from apartments and condominiums and whether the county had agreed to provide door-to-door pickup for GHI residents.

The minority group also recommended city assistance in expanding the county recycling programs to apartments, condominiums and commercial establishments.

The minority report cited several benefits of joining the county program. Residents would not have to sort their recyclables, the county would absorb more than half of the costs, the city would no longer have to collect newspapers and, as under the majority plan, total tipping fees would be reduced for all materials that were recycled rather than dumped.

This minority group argues that Takoma Park, Bowie and Berwyn Heights encountered serious problems in attempting to run their own recycling programs. They say that Takoma Park has to pay to get rid of its recyclables, while Berwyn Heights has abandoned its efforts and will join the county program this summer. Bowie's problems with a private contractor have recently been in the news, as the contractor was unable to handle the volume of material collected. The group argues that the county program represents a minimum risk approach to recycling for Greenbelt. If the county program did not meet the city's needs, the group argues that Greenbelt could then either implement its own program or collect residents' recyclables for delivery to the county MRF.

Unlike the city plan, the county's hauler would collect recyclables at the curb, except in GHI where the hauler would enter the courts. Handicapped residents would receive door-to-door collection from specially marked bins. Committee member Leonie Penney argued that GHI was overrepresented on the committee, which was dealing primarily with a city-wide recycling program, not an evaluation of existing refuse service. She noted that if the vote had been taken by community, the minority report would have been selected on a 4-3 vote.

Areas Not Served

One concern cited by Penney is how to implement recycling in those areas not receiving city refuse service. She said that she had talked to county officials who had told her that the homeowners associations for townhouses and single family homes are to determine whether their private haulers are interested in providing this service. If not, the county will provide the service. Penney said that the county has a special program for apartments and condominiums and for businesses. She noted that Hunting Ridge has been part of a county pilot program.

Penney also disputed Haslach's argument that the convenience of door-to-door pickup is essential for a successful program. She argued that the majority proposal is more inconvenient since residents would have to sort their recyclables into the bins, carry the stack out and reassemble after trash pickup. Penney said that in her opinion, this was a "heck of a lot more hassle" than carrying one container out to the curb.

Not all residents would participate if forced to separate their recyclables, Penney argued, which would reduce the effectiveness of the program. She said that the minority group feels that the materials would still need to be resorted by whatever jurisdiction is providing the collection.

Tracy Hassan, committee member from Springhill Lake, argued for the county plan as the best way to begin recycling as much as possible, as soon as possible. She argued that the city-run plan neglects apartments and condominiums, while the county-run proposal recommends full assistance by the city to implement the county program throughout the city. Charlene MacAdams of Greenwood Village and the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee said that the majority proposal excludes Greenbelt East. She also questioned how many people would be willing to sort their recyclables. MacAdams said that she wasn't sure she would do so, even though she is interested in recycling.

Committee member Jim O'Reilly, of Boxwood, also supported the county-run plan. He noted that the city could join the plan very quickly and said that the county is now willing to collect door-to-door in GHI.

Haslach said that the county's recycling coordinator had told him that the county would not go door-to-door in GHI or serve apartments.

O'Reilly argued that the majority group had underestimated the labor required for their plan. He said that at a minimum, a full-time coordinator would be needed to handle the marketing of the materials.

Staff Comments

City Manager James K. Giese said that he had based his budget proposal on the minority plan. He argued that this plan would allow the city to maintain its refuse at their current level for two years.

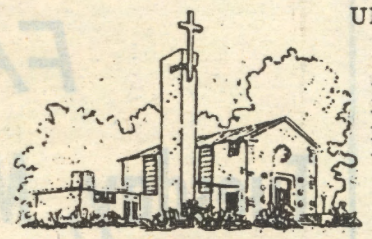

Giese came down hard against the city-run plan as proposed in the majority report. In an April 20 memorandum to council, he said "the cost entailed to pick up separated material at the door and to process at a city yard for marketing will be so great, and that the procedures that will have to be followed are so cost-ineffective, and that the responsibility placed upon the resident (is) so complicated that the majority report proposal is not a viable workable alternative." He said that staff's main concerns involve the collection and marketing of the materials. He said that the door-to-door collection of sorted recyclables would be very labor-intensive. He believed further sorting will be needed, requiring a materials handling yard somewhere in the city and additional labor. Giese argued that the future of recycling is in MRF's.

While he conceded that there could be problems if the county did not do a good job in designing the MRF, Giese argued that a properly run MRF will produce a higher quality recyclable product than a city-run program could produce. This may make it difficult for the city to market its recyclables. Giese noted that the city could consider other alternatives between the city and county plans.

Council Hears Budget Requests For Increases In Staff Positions

by Helen Webb

The Greenbelt City Council held a worksession on Tuesday, April 24 with city staff members and representatives of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad to discuss the city's proposed budget for fiscal years 1990-91 and 1991-92. City Manager James Giese explained to council the levels of funding contained in the budget, and heads of departments wishing an increase in funds above that allocated in the budget presented their cases.

Fire Department Request

Fire department president Henry Wynkoop explained the department's request that an additional cent be added to the city's tax rate to be allocated to the fire department for an equipment replacement fund. Although this raise is not included in the current proposed budget and council has not officially voted in favor of the tax increase, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, Mayor Pro Tem Thomas X. White, and council members Toni Bram and Joe Isaacs voiced their support of the proposal, provided that the fund is used only for large equipment purchases and not for building maintenance, and that all other sources of funding are exhausted first.

Unfunded Positions Addressed

Carol Leventhal, director of Greenbelt CARES, delivered a progress report and requested that the city council consider funding several requests that were not included in the budget. These include expansion of the office assistant's position from half to full time, an increase in the number of youth and family counselor positions from 1½ to 2, and the sharing of the cost of a half-time crisis intervention specialist with the police department. Leventhal said that there is a waitng list for non-Greenbelters requesting counseling (almost half of the department's budget comes from sources outside the city), and that more counselors are needed to handle the workload and more office help is needed to allow the counselors to devote all their time to their professional duties. Councilmember Toni Bram advocated funding the office assistant position, but in general the council seemed unwilling to increase funding to cover additional professional positions, at least for the next fiscal year.

Greenbelt Director of Finance and Administrative Services Casimir Prybyl also asked council to consider increased funding. The proposed budget contains an additional Accounts Clerk I position; however, because of increased responsibilities allocated to the city due, in part, to the change to a "cafeteria" benefits plan for city employees, Prybyl would like to increase the salary of the new position in order to attract someone with at least an Associate's degree. To save money this fiscal year, Prybyl suggested that the position not be filled until September. Citing that this was the first mention of this request, council withheld comment and Weidenfeld asked that Giese make his recommendations on the position at the final budget work session.

Other Concerns

Councilmember Ed Putens expressed concern about a cost overrun for legal expenses, noting that the original 1989/90 budget allocated $22K for professional legal services, and that the current budget document shows that an estimated $30K will be spent this fiscal year. Giese said that, although the published figure is just an estimate at this point, the city was involved in more litigation this year than was originally foreseen, and that more requests for legal advice were made. White said that he would like to receive a more detailed accounting of the city's legal costs. Giese said that some additional information was contained in the city financial report, and that he would see what he could do about supplementing that information.

Council member Joe Isaacs reported that seepage from antennas on top of local water towers is causing interference to cable television service in some areas of the city, and that solutions are being investigated.

Council voiced concern over the increased placement of newspaper vending boxes around the city, saying complaints have been received from residents of Windsor Green and Boxwood Village. Giese said that vending boxes can perhaps be regulated, but not prohibited.

Second Settling Pond Planned To Control Sediment at Lake

by Betsy Likowski

Work will start this summer on a second project to help clear Greenbelt Lake of algae and sediment. Engineering plans of the project were presented to the Greenbelt City Council's Advisory Planning Board at its regular meeting on Wednesday, April 18. The plans will be discussed at the next council meeting, Monday, May 14.

The plan is to enlarge the small settling pond located south of the lake between Lakeside Drive residences and Charlestowne Village. The pond will increase from the current 0.2 acre to 0.5 acre in size. It will have a 1:3 slope and disturb 0.02 acres of wetland. The pond will require the digging of 2500 cubic yards of dirt with 700 cubic yards to be taken off the site.

The purpose of the project is to reduce excess sediment and nutrients that flow into Greenbelt Lake. This is the second project done by the city for this purpose, the first being the work completed last autumn near the peninsula on the east end of the lake.

All lakes gradually "age" as more and more sediments and nutrients wash into them, and over time lakes become shallower and more filled with plant life. Greenbelt Lake is going through this process at a fast pace because of all the dirt and excess nutrients (such as leaves and dog doo) that have washed into the lake. Thus Greenbelt Lake has become shallower and more filled with water weeds and algae.

City consultants Dames & Moore estimate the new pond will stop 60% of the dirt that goes into the lake at that point. The current pond stops 30%. The two new projects combined will stop about 50% of the sediment.

The current pond stops 20% of the phosphates washed into the lake at this point. The new pond is estimated to stop 35% of the phosphates. Phosphates contribute to the growth of algae, the green scum-like plants that cover objects in the lake.

It will be "Jazz Under the Stars" when the well-known Jazz saxophonist Buck Hill and his Buck Hill Quartet appear on Sat., June 2, in honor of Greenbelt Day. Hill was recently described by the Washington Post as "one of the world's great tenor saxophonists." The free concert will be held outdoors at the Municipal Pool, starting at 8 p.m. The concert is sponsored by the Greenbelt Arts Center, in cooperation with the City of Greenbelt Recreation Department. This is the fifth and final event in the Arts Center's 1989-90 Music Series.

The Recreation Department will keep the pool open until just before the concert. Those attending are encouraged to bring chairs or blankets. The Arts Center will have a concession stand before the event and during intermission.

Buck Hill has been widely known in D.C. area jazz circles for many years. The Buck Hill Quartet (tenor sax, piano, bass, and drums) has appeared frequently at the One Step near Georgetown, at jazz festivals in Europe, and at the Montpelier Jazz Festival in Laurel. At the most recent Montpelier festival, the Quartet was featured along with jazz legends like Charlie Byrd, Covington and Ethel Ennis. Hill has also made occasional recordings, including a new album scheduled for release in June.

Hill was featured in a Washington Post story in 1989 which called him "one of the giants of jazz". The story also noted that Hill and his wife Helen live in Greenbelt, at Greenbriar. That startling revelation caused the Arts Center to contact Hill about appearing on its Music Serieis.

Spring Soccer Tournament To Benefit MDA Nears

Sponsors of the 2nd annual spring soccer tournament for the benefit of MDA are pleased to announce that Prince Georges County Executive Parris N. Glendening has agreed to be the honorary chairman of the Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club's Second Annual MDA Spring Soccer Tournament. The county executive enthusiastically supports this effort to raise money for MDA and for the children and their families who receive the benefit of MDA's research and programs.

The Second Annual Spring Soccer Tournament for the Benefit of the Muscular Dystrophy Association will be held the weekend of May 18-20 (raindate: June 1-3) at the Greenbelt Middle School fields. The proceeds of this tournament will go to help Petey Renzi, a local Greenbelt seven-year-old, and the other kids like him who have muscular dystrophy. All proceeds will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Last year Petey played in the tournament as a member of a Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club team. This year, he will be cheering from the sidelines. He is physically unable to play soccer.

Last year, the tournament was able to raise about $5,500 for MDA. The tournament goal is to raise $6,500 this year. The tournament relies on donations, corporate sponsorships, program ads and purchases from its concession stand at the tournament to raise money. Persons or companies wishing to make a donation, provide sponsorship, or wishing to place an ad in the tournament program should contact Marie Hite (Petey's mom) as soon as possible at (H) 345-9528 or (W) 841-0102.

Volunteers are needed to help run the tournament. If interested in providing assistance (no soccer knowledge is required) contact Marie Hite, or Jane Cosner at (H) 474-0981.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again ! !

A few complaints we've had this past week here at the repair facility concern when vehicles stopped at traffic lights overheat, but then start to cool down when driven away. Yes, these are primarily the problems that are involved when an electrically controlled cooling fan circuit does not operate. Most of these conditions are related to front wheel driven vehicles, because there is no conventional fan assembly. It is replaced by an electronically controlled cooling fan assembly that is activated by coolant temperature. And if so equipped, when the air conditioner is turned on, this is supposed to activate the cooling fan circuit. The main condition develops when you get yourself caught in traffic, and the fan circuit does not come on. Then the engine starts to overheat, and then, well, you know the rest!! The most common fault found with these systems is the controller sensor that is located in the cooling system. This tells the circuit how hot the engine coolant is and when it gets to its designated temperature setting iti grounds the circuit through a relay and turns the fan on. If you have an overheating condition only related to stop and go traffic, this could be a related factor. This referred condition will affect the air conditioner output when in traffic due to the fact that there is no air flow across the radiator and condensor areas.

TILL NEXT TIME ! ! ! !

THINK PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE ! ! ! !
